Early Success of Pet Pals Support for Low Income Spay and Neuter Clinics

This month we are celebrating! Our vision of regular, low-cost spay/neuter clinics for lower-income Jefferson County residents is coming true. This month our funding will support three clinics - two at Center Valley Animal Rescue (CVAR) and one at the Humane Society of Jefferson County (HSJC), providing clients with low or no-cost spay/neuter surgeries. Early numbers show that our funds are going almost four times farther than they did in the past with our private vet clinic vouchers. And MORE animals are being served! Because our funds are not being depleted so quickly, we are confident that we can ensure continuation of these services for the long term and meet the needs of our community.

We are excited to be working as a team with the other non-profit animal organizations in our community for the benefit of companion animals and their families. Our partners provide many other essential services to animals but money donated to OMPP will be used ONLY for supporting low-income community spay/neuter services. Thanks to your support, our vision has become a reality.

Salish Coast Read to Rover Reading Circle Going Strong

Every Wednesday morning, Denise Aedan, librarian at Port Townsend's Salish Coast Elementary School, hosts an on-line reading circle with Read to Rover dogs. She has been working with Salish Coast Read to Rover coordinator, Laura Joshel.

Denise with Lumie, Chico and Leo wait for all the kids to arrive on Zoom.

It turns out that one of the highlights of this program is that the kids get to bring their own pets to share. We've been introduced to their dogs, cats, and gerbils. This is a "feature" that could never be included in a traditional Read to Rover program and the kids seem to love it. The kids take turns reading books of their choosing and listen to wonderfully produced videos of books read by Denise.

Tribute to Kate Schumann

Kate Schumann's recent death has saddened the hearts of everyone in the Pet Pals family. She made many significant contributions to our organization and to the greater community of animal lovers and advocates, including creating the Read to Rover program. We cherish Kate's legacy.
